HARRIMAN-CES
PRE-DISSERTATION RESEARCH FELLOWSHIP
in Central and East European Studies

The Harriman Institute and the Council for European Studies (CES) invite eligible Columbia University graduate students to apply for the 2015 Harriman-CES Pre-Dissertation Research Fellowship. Each fellowship includes a $4,000 stipend, travel support for attending and presenting at the International Conference of Europeanists, and the opportunity to publish in Perspectives on Europe, a semi-annual journal of the Council for European Studies.

Eligibility: Harriman-CES Pre-Dissertation Research Fellowships are intended to fund exploratory dissertation research conducted by Columbia University graduate students focused on topics pertaining to Central and Eastern Europe. Those who are focused exclusively on Western or Southern Europe and/or who have already engaged in extensive field work in Europe are not eligible. All application materials due by January 19, 2015.

For more information, visit our website:

www.councilforeuropeanstudiesty.org