Funding Opportunity for Ph.D. Students Researching Politics or Economics

Thanks to a generous grant from the Carnegie Corporation of New York, the Harriman Institute at Columbia University announces a competition to provide funding for travel and expenses for up to ten Ph.D. students to attend the EACES-HSE Workshop: "Comparative Perspectives on the Political Economy of Development," June 9-11, 2020 in Moscow. The Call for Papers is https://iims.hse.ru/en/csid/announcements/331587594.html. It is expected that ten participants will receive grants of up to $2,250 each.

In its ninth year, this annual summer workshop is run by the International Center for the Study of Institutions and Development (ICSID) at the Higher School of Economics (HSE) in Moscow together with the European Association for Comparative Economic Studies (EACES). For information on past workshops see here, here and here.

We adopt a broad understanding of political economy and welcome submissions that can offer useful perspectives on recent developments in the field as well as those that offer a historical or comparative perspective.

The working language for the workshop is English. The workshop will be held at the central HSE campus at Myasnitskaya St., 11, Moscow.

Submission:

To participate in the workshop, please submit a paper abstract of up to 250 words (or a draft paper), together with a short CV, to vkotelnikova@hse.ru and to tmf2@columbia.edu by February 21, 2020. Applicants will be informed about their selection by March 10, and the authors of accepted proposals are expected to submit full papers by May 20.

ICSID will provide you with the necessary invitation to apply for a visa at a Russian consulate of your choosing. Since issuing an invitation for a visa may take up to five weeks, we would be grateful if you could apply in advance.

ICSID can also assist in finding accommodations at one of the HSE Guest Houses or hotels during your stay in Moscow. Please note that HSE Guest House room availability is not guaranteed, so early requests are appreciated. ICSID does not, however, cover travel or accommodation expenses.
