HISTORY AND MISSION OF THE HARRIMAN INSTITUTE

Established as the Russian Institute in 1946, the Harriman Institute at Columbia University is one of the world’s leading academic institutions for the study of Russia, Eurasia, and East Central Europe. The Institute was renamed in 1982 to honor an extraordinarily generous gift from the family of W. Averell Harriman.

Throughout the years our faculty and alumni have made important contributions to academia, and have also played leading roles in public policy, law, diplomacy, business, and the arts. Notable among them are former head of the National Security Council, Zbigniew Brzezinski; former Special Advisor to the Secretary of State, Marshall Shulman; former Ambassador to Russia, Jack Matlock; and former Secretary of State, Madeleine Albright.

The Institute currently houses a diverse multidisciplinary faculty from Columbia’s School of Arts and Sciences, Barnard College, the schools of International and Public Affairs, Business, Law, and the Arts, Teacher’s College, and the Union and Jewish Theological Seminaries. We support teaching, research, and public events that bring together our extraordinary faculty, students, and alumni. From "brown bag" lectures, book presentations, art exhibitions and film screenings, to scholarly panels and conferences, the Institute provides a constantly evolving forum for intellectual discussion and innovation.

In addition to offering undergraduate and graduate courses, the Institute administers an MA program in Russian, Eurasian, and East European Studies, which admits approximately 10 students per year. We are committed to training the next generation of regional specialists, who will continue to shape policy, fill leading academic positions, and challenge the accepted truths about how we study our rapidly changing world.

The Harriman Institute is a non-profit institution kept alive by the generous contributions of donors, including the Mary W. Harriman Foundation, our most generous perennial donor. Our numerous endowments account for approximately 90 percent of our revenue. For a list of our donors this year, see page 35.

Dear Friends,

After the onset of the COVID-19 pandemic last March, the 2020-21 academic year marked a milestone in the history of the Harriman Institute: the first school year conducted entirely online. While we eagerly await our in-person return to the 12th floor, we continued to support the full slate of regional programming, events, and research that have made the Harriman Institute’s name for nearly three-quarters of a century.

Building off our rapid transition to online events last spring, we hosted a total of 123 virtual events this year, nearly all of them streamed through Zoom and YouTube Live. Highlights included a virtual visit from Azerbaijani writer and activist Akram Aylisli; a discussion with director Jasmila Žbanić on her Oscar-nominated film Quo Vadis, Aida?; and our October 2020 panel discussion debating, “Is It a Time to Rethink Our Russia Policy?” The latter event, offering a spirited exchange of views ahead of the 2020 U.S. presidential election, was one of 12 events co-hosted with New York University’s Jordan Center for the Advanced Study of Russia as part of our ongoing New York Russia Public Policy Seminar, supported by a generous grant from the Carnegie Corporation of New York.

Even as the pandemic brought campus life to a standstill, events in the region continued to gain steam. As ever in turbulent times, the public turned to Harriman for greater understanding. Some of our most popular events this year came straight from the headlines—whether focusing on the resumption of conflict in Nagorno-Karabakh, the fight for democracy in Belarus, or Russia’s concerning troop build-up along the border with Ukraine. We were also proud to host such public figures as Lt. Colonel Alexander Vindman, who appeared in an anti-corruption conference sponsored by our Ukrainian Studies Program, and Sviatlana Tsikhanouskaya, the exiled Belarusian opposition leader.

On the academic front, seven students graduated from our growing master’s program (MARS-REERS), having completed their degrees under extraordinary and unanticipated circumstances. And in fall 2020, we welcomed 14 new students into the program, one of our largest cohorts yet. Students based in New York were able to gather for a socially distanced picnic to kick off their studies, and several have been matched with Harriman alumni through the mentorship program we launched last year. We are committed to ensuring that the camaraderie and professional community that define the Harriman Institute will endure in these challenging times.

The Harriman community continues to mourn the loss of Stephen F. Cohen, who passed away on September 18, 2020. A distinguished historian of the Soviet Union and an active Harriman alumnus, Stephen also embodied the spirit of frank and open debate which characterizes our public engagement on the region. Harriman faculty continue to publish widely and to serve as public experts on the region; see page 6 for a list of their publications this year.

We remain grateful to the many donors who support our work and make such research possible. Ongoing support from PepsiCo supports the studies and research of students in the MARS-REERS program and across Columbia, as well as Harriman faculty research. The U.S. Russia Foundation’s generous grant to support BA/MA students also bore fruit this year, as two 5-year program graduates completed their coursework and two others were accepted into the program. Please see page 22 for details on our fellowships, and page 35 for a listing of our individual and corporate donors.

As I write this letter, the arrival of widely available vaccines and the announcement of a return to in-person instruction offer hope of a return to normal next year. With the loosening of travel restrictions, too, several of our students have accepted grants to pursue summer field research from Krakow to Istanbul to Bishkek. As the Harriman Institute navigates a safe return to the classroom and the celebration of our 75th anniversary next year, we hope you will continue to follow our work. Visit our newly redesigned website for ongoing updates, and be sure to follow us on Twitter, Facebook, Instagram, and YouTube.

Thank you for your ongoing support, and we hope to see you back in person on the 12th floor!

Best wishes,
Alexander Cooley

HARRIMAN MAGAZINE

The Fall 2020 issue of Harriman Magazine includes a cover story on Vlodko Kaufman’s exhibit A Conversation at the Ukrainian Museum; an interview with Harriman Institute director Alexander Cooley about his new book, Exit from Hegemony: The Unraveling of the American Global Order; a profile of alumnus Joshua Yaffa, the New Yorker’s Moscow correspondent; an excerpt from Catherine Grace Katz’s new book, The Daughters of Yalta: The Churchills, Roosevelts, and Harrimans: A Story of Love and War; an essay about Lara J. Nettelfield’s oral history project on the refugee “crisis”; an interview with author and filmmaker Michael Idov; and a translation of Polina Barskova’s “Reaper of Leaves.”

The cover story for the Summer 2021 issue on changing forms of inclusivity in Russia was written by Harriman Post-doctoral Research Fellow Svetlana Borodina. Contributions by alumni include Yana Gorokhovskaia’s analysis of Navalny’s legacy; Peter Zalmayev, with Tom Mayne, investigate the corrosive effects of kleptocracy; Tinatin Japaridze talks about her forthcoming book on Stalin. In addition, a profile of alumnus Sanjay Sethi, who put together the first human rights report on artistic repression in Central and Eastern Europe, Padma Desai’s memoir of her trip to the USSR in 1964, and an excerpt from Maria Stepanova’s In Memory of Memory.

STUDIES OF THE HARRIMAN INSTITUTE

The Institute sponsors the Studies of the Harriman Institute in the belief that their publication contributes to scholarly research and public understanding. The first titles in Studies of the Russian Institute appeared in 1953—pioneering works by Institute professors Abram Bergson and Ernest J. Simmons, as well as the first book by one of the Institute’s early Ph.D. graduates, Edward J. Brown. Today more than 150 titles authored by Institute faculty, visiting scholars, fellows, and alumni have appeared under the Institute’s imprint. Recent titles include Anna Frajlich’s The Ghost of Shakespeare: Collected Essays, edited by Ronald Meyer (Academic Studies Press, 2020), and Edward Tyerman’s International Aesthetics: China and Early Soviet Culture (Columbia University Press, 2021).
LIBRARY REPORT

Current Acquisitions
The ongoing challenges of COVID notwithstanding, Columbia’s Slavic, Eurasian and East European collections have continued to grow during the past year, in all physical and digital formats. Our vendors in all of the many languages covered in our collections have continued to provide a steady stream of new imprints and electronic databases for the use of our faculty and students.

One innovation initiated in July of 2020 was a significant expansion of new Russian-language titles made available electronically. Some 500 titles from more than 30 academic publishers—including NLO and ROSSPEN, among others—now arrive as e-books as soon as they appear in Russia. A cost-efficient package was renegotiated in July 2021, in a partnership now involving Columbia, Cornell, NYPL, NYU, Harvard, Princeton, and Yale.

Unquestionably, the most impactful development of the past twelve months was the integration of records for Harvard offsite materials (and therefore “borrowable” by current affiliates) into CLIO. Fully 3,750,000 items from Harvard holdings in either the ReCAP facility in New Jersey, or from the Harvard Depository in Southborough, Mass., may now be requested directly from CLIO. This integration has tremendous benefits for researchers, and further streamlines our collaborative collection development efforts.

Electronic Resources
During the first weeks of the COVID outbreak and shutdown, the Columbia and Cornell Libraries circulated two separate resource guides to subscription-based and purchased offerings in the Slavic, East European and Eurasian fields available to current affiliates at Columbia, and Cornell, as well as URLs for various free, web-based titles. These lists were revised and expanded in spring 2021.

Publications
In January of 2021, Eastern European Modernism: Works on Paper at the Columbia University Libraries and The Cornell University Library [xlv, 298 p.], an indexed Checklist of 1,100 titles from the Baltics, Bulgaria, Croatia, the former Czechoslovakia, Hungary, Poland, Romania, and Serbia, became available through Columbia’s Academic Commons website. This compilation includes a Foreword by art historian Steven A. Mansbach (Distinguished University Professor of the University of Maryland, College Park), and an Introduction by Columbia Slavic Department graduate Irina Denischenko (now teaching at Georgetown). Supported in part by the Harriman Faculty Publications Fund, the Checklist is freely available for viewing or download via Columbia’s Academic Commons at the following URL: https://academiccommons.columbia.edu/doi/10.7916/d8-vwef-4a93.

This work complements 2015’s Checklist of Russian, Ukrainian and Belarusian Avant-Garde and Modernist Books, Serials, and Works on Paper at The New York Public Library and Columbia University Libraries, containing 1,159 entries, also available via Columbia’s Academic Commons. As of fall 2021, it has been downloaded more than 3,269 times.

Antiquarian Purchases
In the area of antiquarian materials, Columbia continues to supplement Eastern European Modernist holdings. Acquisitions in the Fall Semester of 2020 and Spring Semester of 2021 included Alina Lan (Paulina Landau). Kometa Halley’a. [Halley’s Comet]. (Lwów: Filomaty, 1934), with photomontage illustrations by two of the founding members of the Lwów artist group “Artes”. Formed in 1929 by Jerzy Janish, Aleksander Krzywobłocki and Mieczyslaw Wysocki, Artes was active through 1936. This was Lan’s only published work: she died in the destruction of the Lwów Ghetto in 1943. There are only three copies held in public institutions worldwide.
Also acquired was one of only 30 copies of Anna Macková’s Druhá Rocenka [Second Yearbook] (Prague: Anna Macková, 1934) with 59 woodcuts, covering works produced 1927-1934. Number one of only 30 copies; other copies exist at the Getty, the Newberry, and the Metropolitan Museum of Art.

A significant addition to our Russian holdings was acquired in honor of our friend, colleague, and Dostoevsky scholar Professor Deborah Anne Martinsen. It is the first edition of Dostoevsky’s Dnevnik pisatelia za 1877 (St. Petersburg, 1877), with all issues bound in one volume, in its original binding. There are only three copies of the first edition listed in WorldCat: at Yale’s Beinecke, Harvard’s Houghton, and the British Library. Deborah’s 1990 Columbia dissertation—“Dostoevsky and the Temptation of Rhetoric”—used the Diary as one of her principal sources. Also acquired was the artist Dmitry Mitrokhin’s (1883-1973) Piatnadtsat’ graviur reźbom i sukhoi igloi (Leningrad, 1934) with 15 etchings, this copy no. 4 of 150.

Significant works published abroad include Copy No. 1 ("Exemplaire unique") of a 1925 Parisian edition (limited to 100 copies) of Anatole France’s Balthasar illustrated by Sergei S. Solomko (1867-1928) and containing all of his original watercolors and an additional watercolor not included in the published edition. We also acquired Leonhart Frischlin’s Deutsche Schwänke (Leipzig, 1906) which includes 10 hand-colored illustrations by Elena Luksch-Makowsky, with a title page, endpapers and illustrated vellum binding designed by Ignatius Taschner. It is one of only 50 copies of the deluxe edition bound in vellum. Finally, Columbia purchased an exceptionally rare limited edition (120 copies) of a Czech translation (Praha, 1932) of Pushkin’s Poltava, with seven illustrations by Wasył (Vasiliǐ) Masjutyn (1884-1955).

The Road Ahead

While COVID remains a formidable foe, we have witnessed over the past twelve months a gradual re-opening of collections access. We have progressed from complete closure, to scanning and grab-n-go pickup of book materials, the adoption of a reservation-only model for students and faculty access to Butler reading rooms, to unrestricted access for current affiliates in the coming Fall 2021 Semester. Recently, retirees have been welcomed back to our libraries, and we are hopeful campus buildings and collections will re-open to alumni and non-affiliates in the weeks to come.

MASTER OF ARTS IN REGIONAL STUDIES

The Harriman Institute administers the Master of Arts in Regional Studies—Russia, Eurasia and Eastern Europe (MARS-REERS) through the Graduate School of Arts and Sciences for those wishing to focus on a multidisciplinary approach to the study of contemporary Russia, Eurasia and Eastern Europe (the former Soviet Union, Eastern Europe and the Balkans).

2020-21 Graduates of the Program:
Elhan Busuladzic
Gabriella Gonzalez
Alexandra Karppi
Anya Konstantinovsky
Andrew Rowland
Greta Schatz
Grady Vaughan

HARRIMAN REGIONAL SPECIALIZATION

Students of the School of International and Public Affairs (SIPA) may fulfill SIPA's requirement for a specialization, which requires the completion of a total of three graduate level post-Soviet and/or East Central European courses (at least 3 credits each), one of which must be a seminar or colloquium. Courses must be chosen from a minimum of two disciplines.

The Institute encourages SIPA students considering the regional specialization to complete the Harriman Institute Certificate, but recognizes that the additional course and language work may not be possible.

2020-21 SIPA Graduates:
Aigerim Nurmakhanova
Ksenia Weisz

RESEARCH CENTERS, PROGRAMS, AND PROJECTS

PROGRAM ON U.S.-RUSSIA RELATIONS

Director: Elise Giuliano

The Harriman Institute was originally founded in 1946 as the Russia Institute. Building on the rich traditions and extraordinary resources of the Institute, and relying on the cutting-edge research and teaching of today’s faculty and scholars, the Program on U.S.-Russia Relations was established in 2015 to promote and reinvigorate study of the international relationship that drove the Institute’s founding nearly 70 years ago.

Through courses, scholarly and policy conferences, and visiting speaker series, the Program probes the history of U.S.-Soviet and U.S.-Russian relations and the range of current challenges and opportunities facing the two countries today. Its ultimate goal is to provoke both scholarly and policy reconsiderations of the possibilities and limits of U.S.-Russia relations going forward.

UKRAINIAN STUDIES PROGRAM

Staff Associate: Mark Andryczyk

The Harriman Institute’s Ukrainian Studies Program forms a vital component of Columbia University’s international studies community. Its mission includes the advancement of knowledge about Ukraine through research and teaching of the highest quality. The program offers a broad spectrum of courses in Ukrainian history, language and literature as well as in the social sciences for Columbia and Barnard students. Special attention is given to Harriman MARS and SIPA students and to M.A. and Ph.D. students in the Faculty of Arts & Sciences. We are fortunate to sponsor a number of Fulbright Scholars each year.

In academic year 2020-21, the Ukrainian Studies Program at the Harriman Institute continued to present courses and events that focus on Ukraine for Columbia students and faculty.

THE CARNEGIE CORPORATION RUSSIAN STUDIES AND POLICY PROGRAM

In the fall of 2016, facilitated by a generous grant from the Carnegie Corporation of New York, the Harriman Institute launched an intensive project to expand the study of Russia across the social sciences at Columbia University and the greater New York university community.

The New York Russia Public Policy Seminar Series is the centerpiece of this program and builds on Harriman’s rich tradition of policy-outreach to bring scholars and policy-makers together to discuss contemporary issues of critical importance to the U.S. and Russia. The series includes invited talks, panel discussions, and seminars aimed at engaging graduate students and the wider public on topics relating to Russia.

Co-moderated by Harriman Director Alexander Cooley and the NYU Jordan Center’s Joshua Tucker, the program hosted 12 virtual events during the 2020-2021 academic year—the most since its inception in 2016.

CONFERENCES AND SPECIAL EVENTS HIGHLIGHTS

FEBRUARY
4 Liberty and Freedom: Kosciuszko’s Legacy
This Virtual International Forum on Freedom and Liberty was held on the occasion of the 275th anniversary of the birth of a Polish-Lithuanian-Belarusian-American hero, Andrzej Tadeusz Bonawentura Kościuszko. This forum aimed to highlight how freedom and liberty can inspire and shape developments in Central and Eastern Europe, specifically focusing on Belarus, Ukraine, and the Baltics.

Presenters included Belarusian opposition leader Sviatlana Tsikhanouskaya (below), former Polish Prime Minister Hanna Suchocka, and President of the Court of Justice of the European Union Koen Lenaerts. Professor Jenik Radon (Harriman Institute) served as moderator. This event was co-sponsored by Mykolas Romeris University (Lithuania), and the European Humanities University (Belarusian university in exile, Lithuania).

APRIL
8 The State of Roma Human Rights in the Balkans
The Harriman Institute joined the Roma Peoples Project at Columbia University and the Kupferberg Holocaust Center at Queensborough Community College, CUNY for a conference on the state of Roma human rights in the Balkans. This conference brought together top Roma scholars in the academy, advocates, and practitioners who are working to advance the human rights and dignity of Roma people throughout the Balkans.

MAY
5-8 25th Annual World Convention of the Association for the Study of Nationalities (ASN)
ASN’s Annual World Convention, originally scheduled for May 7-9, 2020 at Columbia University, was cancelled when it became clear that the onset of the COVID-19 pandemic would make it impossible to conduct a large-scale international convention on-site. A new initiative, Virtual ASN, was launched in the spring of 2020 in an effort to help maintain constructive connections with the association’s academic community during a time of greater physical distance.

Virtual ASN, led by the program’s founding director Zsuzsza Csergő, is a global online academic platform linking scholars, students, and members of the broader public interested in questions of nationalism and ethnicity with a regional focus on Europe and Eurasia. It provides opportunities for scholars to share knowledge and expertise on pressing issues, and to strengthen their own research and teaching skills. Virtual ASN’s inaugural panel, "Nationalism and the Pandemic," was held on May 7, 2020, and nearly a dozen more Virtual ASN panels and workshops were held on a range of topics throughout the remainder of the year. ASN will continue to enhance this new programmatic initiative in 2021 and beyond while also relaunching its Annual World Convention series (first in a virtual format from May 6-8, 2021 and then again onsite at Columbia University in subsequent years when conditions allow).

FELLOWSHIPS AND GRANTS

STUDENT FELLOWSHIPS
Through a rigorous application and selection process, the Harriman Institute annually awards student funding to cover partial or full tuition, stipends, research travel, language study, and internship support for Columbia University students studying our region. The following students were awarded grants in 2020-2021.

PepsiCo Junior Fellowships
The PepsiCo Junior Fellowship is awarded for a period of one academic year to outstanding Certificate and/or MARS-REERS students. Candidates should have completed two semesters of graduate studies by the time the fellowship period begins and must be in good standing with their departments or schools. The Fellowship supports one year of course work, partial or full tuition, and may include a stipend.

2020-21 PepsiCo Junior Fellows
Roy Bar Sadeh, History Department
Reut Ullman, History Department
Ben Lussier, Slavic Department
Ben Cohen, MARS-REERS

MARS Fellowship
The MARS Fellowship is awarded to outstanding MARS-REERS students and provides partial tuition.

2020-21 MARS Fellows
Christopher Blackwood, MARS-REERS
Elhan Busuladzic, MARS-REERS
Gabrielle Gonzalez, MARS-REERS

Mosely-Backer Fellowship
The Philip E. Mosely and John H. Backer Fellowship is awarded to outstanding graduate students in the field of Soviet/post-Soviet Studies. There is a preference for a student specializing in political science; however, all Columbia graduate students are eligible.

2020-21 Mosely-Backer Fellows
Samuel Coggeshall, History Department

USRF Fellowship
The US Russia Foundation awarded a 2-year grant to the Harriman Institute entitled "Shaping an Early Career Interest in Russia/Eurasia: Supporting the Harriman Institute’s 5-year BA/MA Program." The fellowship offers full tuition support for BA/MA students and is designed to encourage the most exceptional undergraduate students at Columbia and Barnard who have a demonstrated interest in Russia and Eurasia to complete a masters degree in their fifth year.

2020-2021 USRF Fellows
Anya Konstantinovsny, BA/MA
Greta Schatz, BA/MA

Bazarko Fellowship
Dr. Volodymyr Bazarko and his wife Mrs. Lydia Z. Bazarko have established an endowment fund for the Ukrainian Studies Program at the Harriman Institute. The Bazarko Fellowship is awarded to a student whose research focuses on Ukraine, its culture, politics, economics or history.

2020-21 Bazarko Fellow
Serhii Tereshchenko, Slavic Department

Shkilnyk Fellowship
The Shkilnyk Fellowship is awarded to one graduate student concentrating in Ukrainian history and/or social sciences at the Harriman Institute. It is open to all Columbia graduate students.

2020-21 Shkilnyk Fellow
Serhii Tereshchenko, Slavic Department

Isaac Henry Ergas Fellowship
The Ergas Memorial Fellowship is awarded to outstanding students conducting research in Turkic and Central Asian Studies. Candidates must share Isaac Henry Ergas’ enduring commitment to promote economic development and social justice and to overcome ethnic strife. They must apply for it specifically, are required to inform the Ergas family of their research plans and progress, and must acknowledge receipt of the Fellowship in any written work produced with the aid of such funding, copies of which must be deposited with the Harriman Institute.

2020-21 Ergas Fellow
Grady Vaughan, MARS-REERS
John Hazard Fellowship
The John Hazard Fellowship is awarded to students who have shown excellence in the study of Russian law.

2020-21 Hazard Fellow
Grady Vaughan, MARS-REERS

Joseph I. Meiers Fellowship
The Joseph I Meiers Fellowship is awarded to graduate students specializing in the region who intend to enter the fields of academia, government, business, and/or journalism and plan to perpetuate throughout their careers the ideals of world peace represented by the fellowship.

2020-21 Meiers Fellows
Michael Gluck, Slavic Department
Vera Senina, Slavic Department

Civil Society Fellowships
The Harriman Institute Civil Society Graduate Fellowship supports graduate student travel and living expenses for unpaid practical summer internships at any international or non-governmental organization that benefits civil society in any of the countries of the Russian, Eurasian, or East-Central European region.

2020-21 Civil Society Fellows
Benjamin Cohen, MARS-REERS
Amit Khatri, School of International and Public Affairs

Njegos Fellowships
The Njegos Fellowship is sponsored by the Njegos Endowment for Serbian Language and Culture at Columbia University and supports graduate students specializing in Serbian language or culture.

2020-21 Njegos Fellows
Ivan Durovic, School of the Arts

Summer Language Study Fellowships
The Harriman Institute's Summer Language Fellowships are awarded to Columbia undergraduate and graduate students for intensive study of the languages of Russia, Eurasia, and East Central Europe in either the region or the U.S. Open to all Columbia University students.

2020-21 Summer Language Study Fellowship Recipients
Patrick Ambrogio, MARS-REERS

Undergraduate Research Fellowship
The Harriman Institute's Undergraduate Research Fellowship is awarded to Columbia College students who propose a summer research project relevant to Russia, Eurasia, and East Central Europe.

2020-21 Undergraduate Research Fellows
John "Jack" Chivers, Columbia College
Jennifer Li, Barnard College
Alisa Shodiyev, General Studies
Jiashi Yang, Columbia College
With the arrival of widely available COVID-19 vaccines in spring 2021, Columbia University policy changed to allow for limited research-based summer travel. The Harriman Institute was proud to sponsor the summer research of eight students through its PepsiCo travel grants. Grants were given to students across Columbia’s graduate programs; for many students, this was the first time they could travel abroad to pursue their research since the onset of the COVID-19 pandemic in March 2020.

Among the students receiving travel grants were:

- Natalia Alexander, student in the MS in Conflict Resolution program, for travel to North Macedonia to interview peacekeepers;
- Azat Bilalutdinov, PhD student in history, for archival research in Moscow;
- Zina Osipova, PhD student in history, for archival research in Nizhny Novgorod and Dzerzhinsk, Russia;
- Sohee Ryuk, PhD student in history, for research on carpetmaking and handicrafts in Georgia;
- Mohammad Salhut, student at Columbia Business School and SIPA, to interview Russian shareholders and experts on privatization in Moscow and St. Petersburg;
- Serhii Tereshchenko, PhD student in Slavic Languages, for archival research in Kyiv and Krakow;
- Kasiet Toktomusheva, PhD student in the History of Art and Architecture, for research on architecture and urban planning in Kyrgyzstan;
- Emma Wilbur, MARS-REERS student, for thesis research on the Turkish domestic labor market and the experience of female migrants in Istanbul.
FACULTY RESEARCH SUPPORT

2020-21 Tymkiw Research Grant Recipients
Elise Giuliano, Political Science Department

POSTDOCTORAL SCHOLARS
The Harriman Institute postdoctoral fellowships allow junior scholars to spend a 2-year term in residence at Columbia University in New York. All scholars are assigned a faculty mentor. Postdoctoral scholars are expected to concentrate on their own research and writing; to give a brownbag seminar on their research; teach one course; and to be active participants in the Institute’s scholarly community and events. All postdoctoral scholars receive university IDs that provide access to the full range of resources within the Columbia library system, and the Institute makes every effort to provide desk space for all postdoctoral scholars. The Institute provides funds to sponsor workshops, conferences, and special events planned by scholars around their particular interests.

The primary criterion in awarding these fellowships is academic excellence. The Fellowship Committee seeks evidence that the candidate’s research, teaching, and publications will make a significant, original contribution to the study of Russia, Eurasia, and/or East-Central Europe in their particular field of study.

2020-21 Postdoctoral Scholars

Svetlana Borodina
Postdoctoral Research Scholar

As a medical and cultural anthropologist, Svetlana Borodina studies post-Soviet cultures and the politics of disability inclusion in Russia. Her ethnographic work explores the technologies through which bodily and mental differences become folded into the production of postsocialist forms of citizenship and relationality for abled and disabled individuals alike.

At Harriman, Dr. Borodina will be working on her book manuscript tentatively titled A Postsocialist Journey of Inclusion, which offers an anthropological account of the trajectory of the internationally acclaimed, liberally versed disability-inclusion mandate that began with negotiations around the United Nations Convention on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities (UNCRPD). Borodina traces how this mandate traveled to inclusion programs in post-Soviet Russia and then appeared in reports of the Committee on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities (CRPD) on Russia. The ethnographic material collected offers insight into how the globally configured biopolitical regimes of inclusivity are challenged and changed on the ground, under the influence of local agendas of competing and collaborating stakeholders. Additionally, this project offers an analysis of Russia’s current repertoire of ability models and valued regimes of citizenship. It pays particular attention to the conditions that enable the rebranding of people with disabilities as valued contributors to society and implicate people with disabilities into the production of the image of an able and modern nation. Finally, in this project, Dr. Borodina provides an overview of Russian cultures of community building and the practice of freedom as she addresses the concepts of ability and valued forms of civic participation in Russia.

Dr. Borodina received her Ph.D. in Anthropology from Rice University in 2020. She also holds graduate certificates in Critical and Cultural Theory and in the Study of Women, Gender, and Sexuality. She has written about the affective politics at the nexus of bodies, technology, and biopolitical discourses of self-care, and about the emergent renegotiations of what constitutes ability and disability in contemporary Russia. Her research has been supported by the Mellon/ACLS Dissertation Completion Fellowship, the Social Science Research Council, the Wenner-Gren Foundation, and the Social Sciences Research Institute at Rice University.

Daria Ezerova
Postdoctoral Research Scholar

Daria V. Ezerova specializes in twentieth-century and contemporary Russian culture and society with a focus on ideology, theories of space, and Putin-era literature and cinema. She received her Ph.D. in Slavic Languages and Literatures from Yale University in 2018.

Her book project Derelict Futures: The Spaces of Socialism in Russian Literature and Film, 1991-2012 examines how political power shaped the representation of space and time after the collapse of the USSR. Combining insights from social sciences and critical theory with research on urbanism, literature, and cinema, the project stakes a broader claim that the spatial expression of the idea of progress reveals distinct phases in the way Russian culture registered the fall of the USSR. Through this, it exposes cultural and political complexities obscured by the umbrella category of “post-Soviet” and participates in a transdisciplinary conversation about the interconnection of spatial practices, politics, and culture, as well as broader debates on the relationship between post-socialism and post-modernity. At the Harriman Institute, Dr. Ezerova will be completing her book manuscript as well as an article on the reemergence of the chernukha mode across media after the protests of 2011-13. She will also be teaching courses on post-Soviet and contemporary Russian culture.

Before coming to the Harriman Institute, Dr. Ezerova was a Visiting Assistant Professor of Russian Studies at Davidson College. She has an additional research interest in art history and her article on the influence of the Pre-Raphaelite Brotherhood on Russian Symbolism is forthcoming in Slavic Review. She is also interested in the study of popular culture and has a chapter on horror and “body genres” in an anthology on Russian cinema. As the President of the ASEEES Working Group on Cinema and Television, she curates the film series for the ASEEES annual convention.

Paula Ganga
Postdoctoral Research Scholar

Paula Ganga is a political scientist with an interest in comparative politics, political economy and political methodology with a regional emphasis on Eastern Europe and other post-communist societies. She received her Ph.D. from Georgetown University in July 2018.

Dr. Ganga’s book manuscript focuses on political determinants of switches between privatization and nationalization. She examines the economic policy shifts between privatization and nationalization prompted by the interaction of international economic pressures and domestic politics. In this project Dr. Ganga uses an original data set of privatizations and nationalizations since 1950 as well as data from extensive field work in Eastern Europe and shows that populist parties in power may pursue an economic nationalist policy regardless of their formal commitments to international economic openness.

Her major project at Harriman focuses on the Economic Consequences of Populism. The project examines the impact of populists in power both on the prospects for democracy as the way these leaders concentrate power either within state institutions or—more likely—within closed elites around the populist leadership. The economic nationalism and welfare chauvinism emerging from populist rhetoric and gathering ever increasing support across Europe and elsewhere threaten to reshape the domestic and global economic landscape. Dr. Ganga’s research bears directly on how nations view the link between democracy and market capitalism, populism, rising illiberalism in recent political transitions and state capitalism.

Before coming to the Harriman Institute, Paula was a Post-doctoral Fellow at the Skalny Center for Polish and Central European Studies, University of Rochester, and a George F. Kennan Short-term Scholar at the Woodrow Wilson Center for International Scholars.

Seonhee Kim
Postdoctoral Research Scholar in Russian Politics

Seonhee Kim specializes in the politics of authoritarian and hybrid regimes in the region of Russia, Central Asia, and Eastern Europe. She received her Ph.D. from the University of Washington in December 2019. Kim’s work broadly speaks to the field of comparative politics and political economy, mainly covering the topics of state repression, social movements, judicial politics, authoritarian electoral institutions, space security, and the welfare state. Her doctoral research focused on judicial measures used to repress civil society in Russia since the Bolotnaya protest in 2012. The dissertation project investigates how the use of officially established procedures for the state’s coercion in the pursuit of regime legitimacy results in an unexpectedly moderate level of repression. The case of Russia reveals that the preexisting institutional structure of the repressive apparatus as a whole prefers quantity over quality in the direction of avoiding bureaucratic liability, dictating the terms of investigation, prosecution, and, finally, courts’ rulings. The confluence of the repressive laws and the preexisting institutional inertia results in a proliferating rate of convictions with light punishment, accounting for the relatively mild level of coercion.

At the Harriman Institute, Kim will work on converting her doctoral dissertation into a book on state repression in contemporary authoritarian regimes, with the addition of cases from comparative states. Other ongoing research projects probe the role of the judiciary in the state’s response to dissent movements in Russia; the strategies for informational control to manage popular discourse.

Olena Martynyuk
Postdoctoral Research Scholar in Ukrainian Studies

Olena Martynyuk is an art historian with an interest in art theory and philosophy. Her research focuses on Ukrainian and Russian art from the late 20thcentury to the present. She graduated with a Ph.D. in art history from Rutgers University in January 2018.

Her dissertation, titled “Postmodern Perestroika: Ukrainian-Russian Artistic Networks of the 1980s-90s,” examines the work of artists in the last Soviet generation. Trained in Socialist Realist methods while witnessing the decomposition of Soviet reality, these Ukrainian and Russian artists invented hybrid art forms that reflected their transitional time period. The dissertation analyzes major paintings of the era, revealing the porous nature of borders separating East and West in the late 1980s, and examines how distant and sometimes distorted echoes of Western theoretical concepts such as Postmodernism, Neo-Expressionism, Transavantgarde, and Neo-Baroque impacted the art of the late Soviet period.

While at the Harriman Institute Dr. Martynyuk will continue her work on transforming her dissertation into a book manuscript with attention to the influence of Ukraine’s delayed postcolonial emancipation on Ukrainian visual culture of the late 20thcentury. She will also continue co-editing with Dr. Alla Rosenfeld a compendium of articles on Ukrainian 20th-century art by Ukrainian and Western scholars.

Martynyuk is the recipient of the Louise Bevier Dissertation Fellowship. She has taught art history classes at Rutgers University and CUNY College of Staten Island, and has curated exhibitions at the Zimmerli Art Museum, The Ukrainian Museum, and the Ukrainian Institute of America in NYC.
