Yuri Shevchuk is Senior Lecturer of Ukrainian at the Department of Slavic Languages and the Harriman Institute at Columbia University in the City of New York. He holds a Ph.D. in Germanic Philology from Kyiv State University (1987) and an M.A. in Political Science from The New School for Social Research (1996). In addition to Ukrainian language courses at all levels, he teaches Ukrainian, Soviet, and post-Soviet film. Dr. Shevchuk has published in the United States, Canada, and Ukraine, both in print and online, on issues of Ukrainian language, identity, culture, and Ukrainian and world cinema. He is the author of Beginner's Ukrainian with Interactive Online Workbook (Hippocrene Books, 2011, 2013, 2016, 2022), a widely used textbook for university students and independent learners around the world. Its third, expanded, and updated edition appeared in January 2024. He has lectured on Ukrainian language, film, and culture at leading universities in the United States, Canada, the United Kingdom, Italy, Spain, Poland, and Ukraine. Dr. Shevchuk is a leading Ukrainian–English lexicographer.
His Ukrainian–English Collocation Dictionary (Hippocrene Books, New York, 2021) without precedent in either Slavic or English lexicography, was followed by a second, revised and streamlined edition with an English–Ukrainian index in April 2024. His forthcoming publications include:

1. Say It in Ukrainian: A Practical Course in Ukrainian Phonetics (Hippocrene Books, New York, March 2026);
2. "Reframing Early Ukrainian Film History: A Case Study in Decolonization," a chapter in the collective monograph Digital Combat: Re/Framing Eastern European and Ukrainian Cinema (Toronto: University of Toronto Press, Spring 2026).
