

Daria Ezerova is Assistant Professor of Contemporary Russian Studies at the University of Cambridge and Fellow of Pembroke College. Her scholarship focuses on rethinking post-Soviet culture through theories of neoliberalism and postmodernity. She has published in Slavic Review, The Russian Review, Studies in Russian and Soviet Cinema, Senses of Cinema, Apparatus, and KinoKultura. Her book manuscript, Derelict Futures: Russian Cinema and the Spaces of Postcommunism, is under contract with Cornell University Press.