Jinyi Chu is Assistant Professor of Slavic Languages and Literatures at Yale University. He is the author of Fin-de-siècle Russia and Chinese Aesthetics: The Other Is the Universal (Oxford UP, 2024), as well as the Chinese-language book World-Feeling: Russian Literature and Geopolitics (Sanlian, 2026). His current book project, Socialism Again: Aesthetics of Reform in the Soviet Union and China in the 1980s, examines how socialist subjectivities and futures were reconceived through reform. His broader research interests include Russian poetry, global modernism, socialist culture, critical theory, and translation studies.
