Oleg Kashirskikh is an Associate Researcher at the Weizenbaum Institute (Berlin, Germany). His research focuses on contemporary political discourse in the post-communist region, with particular attention to the intersections of socio-economic transformations, media, and political identity. His work has been published in Globalizations, European Journal of Communication, International Journal of Strategic Communication, and other academic journals.